

HW 1-6

Consider a polar molecule such as water, which has an electrical dipole moment of 6×10^{-30} Cm. Suppose we place such a molecule in an external electric field of 3.5×10^6 N/C. What is the difference in potential energy between the dipole moment being parallel to and anti-parallel to the electric field?